Operation Backyard Brawl.

On the evening of Tuesday May 28th Craig Sawyer, with #V4CR (Vets For Child Rescue), was notified by an unnamed third party that there were children at a site and they needed help securing them until law enforcement could get there. Mr. Sawyer immediately dispatched to the scene, upon contact with the group he learned that there were not any children present at the site. He met the group VOD, at a nearby gas station where they were currently giving Tuscon Police Department a statement about what they had found at the scene. TPD took the statement and then left the gas station. VOP then took Mr. Sawyer to the site, he taped this encounter. Mr. Sawyer explains that the site was very well camouflaged and hidden; there was a septic tank turned on it's side and buried under the ground and covered with logs and debris. Mr. Sawyer entered this container where he observed that there was no ventilation and there would be no way for a child to exit unassisted. There were various items which indicated that children had been kept in the buried tank including: a small dresser, a box of cereal, and a padlocked chain. Mr. Sawyer indicates that the rounded floor of the container, the padlock, the lack of ventilation, and the seeming inability of a child to come and go unassisted would make it unlikely that the shelter would be used as a temporary shelter for a homeless family and more likely a container designed to keep children against their will.

Mr. Sawyer indicated that as they proceeded to investigate the site, they found "numerous boxes of brunette hair dye. There was also a group of trees with "numerous shielding curtains around them." There were also what appeared to be restraints nailed to the trees, fastened from "nylon rope, looped fire hose, and various straps, starting from about knee high going to about 8ft. high, at the highest."

VOP was created by a group of veterans to help homeless people, particularly homeless veterans and women and children. Mamta Popat. Arizona Daily Star. Thursday November 19, 2015.

The site seemed to indicate that these were “rape trees,” wherein an assailant could secure the victim for the assault. Further adding to this belief Mr. Sawyer indicated that there was also what seemed to be a “tug line” leading from the position that the assailant would be in, leading to a position on the incoming trail, wherein a “guard” would possibly sit. Mr. Sawyer indicated he cannot say definitively what the site was used for; however, “whatever the camp was used for, children were obviously there extensively and the site certainly bears further scrutiny.”

Mr. Sawyer indicates that he believes the organization that is out at the site now, is there because they wish to draw attention to what is happening. Mr. Sawyer added, “I have notified FBI very specifically that there should be DNA present in the container, and I hope they do go investigate in good faith.”

In some areas near the border, rapists began hanging their victims' garments from trees as trophies.^[5131418] “Human trafficking is about the smuggler having power and control over their victims. The rape trees send a signal to those who follow about what will happen if you get out of line. The women are terrorized into submission,” Walden explained during an interview with Breitbart Texas. “While I have only seen one rape tree personally, we get reports from inside the ranches about them on a regular basis.” Breitbart Texas Brandon Darby and Bob Price. 25Apr2016

Sawyer also indicated that “TPD’s force has been cut by 1/3. We should look into whether or not TPD is adequate, a lot of the vehicles are manned by unarmed public servants that don’t respond to crime but civil disturbances.”

Lewis Arthur of VOP, addresses the concerns of some viewers who state that the "Rothschild" family has been connected to child trafficking. Lewis states that the mayor "has been very instrumental in assisting the group with their efforts to help homeless veterans. (Baker, please put this in the notables, we desperately need your help with this one!)

Tucson anon here again, with an update on the child sex trafficking camp found on I-19 and Valencia

We're onto something huge here, anons. Hundreds of us citizens have gone out to see the camp and we're finding more of them as we speak. People are trying to get cadaver dogs out here, since the police and federal authorities are still refusing to investigate even though we have more evidence on these sick bastards than you can imagine. From what we can tell, the camp had to have had 4-6 men operating it at a given time. A cartel member responsible for the camp showed themselves earlier and attempted to scare us off the property despite having no legal right to do so. Needless to say, it didn't work. After it became clear to him how screwed he was, he disappeared on horseback into the Tohono O'odham reservation.

The company that owns the property is Cemex Construction Materials South, LLC. They have attempted to get us to leave, but have not sent anyone directly tied to the ownership of the land. Our citizens are occupying the area until the fences are repaired and the site is fully secured. TPD says we have until Monday morning to do so, but we're not leaving till the work is done. Cemex has threatened to send in private security, but we have armed guards of our own standing watch.

Anons, we have found combs with blonde hair in them. We have found boxes full of kids toys and condoms. We may have even found graves already (we stopped digging halfway when the smell got too bad). People are walking out of here traumatized from what they've seen. Yet the government does nothing. OUR PEOPLE AND OUR CHILDREN HAVE BEEN FORSAKEN.

The local media is trying to spin this like we're making it up and are actively working with cartel members (KGUN 9, I'm talking about you). We need all anons willing to help to spread word of this on any social media platform you have an account on using the #OperationBackyardBrawl and #WhereAreTheChildren hashtags, along with any more you see fit. We've had some brave patriots come and take high quality footage of one of the camps, so God willing the truth will be brought to light.

This is it, anons. This is an opportunity to expose everything we've discovered about the global sex trafficking trade to the masses. The government is complicit, the police administrators are complicit (the officers are not, they want to help as much as the rest of us), and the media is complicit. We have all the physical evidence we need, we have documented everything, we KNOW who was building the camps and raping children, we just need people to spread the word that this exists.

Here is the Facebook page of one of the groups involved with the effort, you can find updates on the operation on it. God bless, patriots.

Amid General Assembly of the United Nations meetings in New York City, Cemex officials signed an agreement to join the UN Foundation Global Alliance for Clean Cookstoves. The public-private partnership seeks to protect the environment and improve local communities' quality of life by creating a global market for clean and efficient household cooking solutions.

"By joining the Alliance, [we] will foster the adoption of cookstoves in Latin America and Asia, strengthening our ongoing corporate social responsibility efforts in these regions and contributing to the well-being of their communities," said Cemex Chairman Lorenzo Zambrano. The company has worked in the field the past three years, he added, providing sustainable cookstove solutions in tandem with government agencies, social entrepreneurs, academia and nongovernment organizations. The Alliance partnership enables Cemex participation in steering committee and advisory group activities, plus high-level meetings with sister UN organizations and the Clinton Global Initiative.

Launched in 2010 by then-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, the Alliance eyes adoption of clean cookstoves and fuels in 100 million households globally by 2020. It advocates for alternatives to open air stoves, whose pollution levels jeopardize individual and community health. The group is "building bridges between the public and private sectors to make the basic but essential act of cooking safe and healthy worldwide," notes Alliance Executive Director Radha Muthiah.

Various links were made between Cemex and The Clinton Foundation, Clinton Global Initiative, an arm of Clinton Foundation. There was also odd references to "concrete" in the alleged personal emails of Mrs. Clinton, shared through WikiLeaks.

SOS Children's Villages

SOS Children's Villages is an independent, non-governmental international development organisation which has been working to meet the needs and protect the interests and rights of children since 1949. It was founded by Hermann Gmeiner in Imst, Austria. According to the Financial Times, the 2004 turnover of SOS Children's Villages altogether was US$807 million, and it was ranked 33 out of a 100 global NGOs for "global accountability".^[1] Its international umbrella organisation, SOS-Kinderdorf International, was founded in 1960, after national associations had been established in France, Germany and Italy in addition to the original Austrian association. Over a hundred national associations across the world have since been established.

In January 2018, the branch of the association in Ethiopia was accused of supporting Islam, including forcible conversion of children.^[5] The organization denies the allegations, but does admit that a mosque (now closed) had been built on SOS land, contrary to policy.^[6]

CEMEX and SOS Children's Villages partner to provide long-term care for orphans of the Indonesia Tsunami

June 26, 2008

The connections highlighted do not prove any criminal or sinister intent. However, given the nature of the topic, doesn't this deserve our attention?

Brief history of SOS Children's Villages

1949: SOS Children's Villages founded in Austria by Hermann Gmeiner; first SOS Children's Village built in Imst, Austria.

1955: The first SOS Youth Facility is being established in Innsbruck, Austria. Foundation of SOS Children's Villages associations in France, Germany and Italy.

1960s: SOS Children's Villages International established as the umbrella organisation for all SOS Children's Villages associations. Start of the work in Latin America (Uruguay).

1963: First SOS Children's Villages in Asia (South Korea and India).

1969: SOS Children's Villages Canada established.

1970s: First African SOS Children's Village built in Côte d'Ivoire; first programmes started in Ghana, Kenya and Sierra Leone.

1985: Helmut Kutin succeeded Hermann Gmeiner as President of SOS Children's Villages International.

1986: SOS Children's Village BC founded by Gilles and Lois Bouchard. Hermann Gmeiner dies on 26 April 1986, having established some 230 SOS Children's Villages all over the world. Both, SOS Children's Villages and Hermann Gmeiner himself had been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize several times.

1991: SOS Children's Villages reactivated in Czechoslovakia. First SOS Children's Villages in Poland and the Soviet Union; new projects in Bulgaria and Romania. Foundation of first SOS Children's Village in the USA.

1995: UN membership: SOS Children's Villages International becomes "NGO in consultative status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations".

1999: The first home (of five) at the SOS Children's Village in Surrey, British Columbia opens.

2002: SOS Children's Villages International receives the Conrad N. Hilton Humanitarian Prize, the world-renowned humanitarian award, for extraordinary contributions towards alleviating human suffering.

2005: Following the tsunami disaster in Asia, SOS Children's Villages starts an emergency relief and reconstruction programme - the largest one in the history of SOS Children's Villages - in India, Sri Lanka, Indonesia and Thailand.

2007: SOS Children's Villages helps victims of natural disasters in Bolivia, Indonesia, Peru and Uruguay, as well as those displaced in the crisis-torn regions of Sudan, Chad and Somalia. Initiated in 2003, the family strengthening programmes support 80,000 children.

In addition to SOS Children's Villages there is also a "partner" organization SOS Children's Villages International. In an upcoming newsletter we will take a look at various children's organizations and the statutory framework in which they operate.

<https://www.sos-childrensvillages.org/who-we-are/history>

2009: The 500th SOS Children's Village is opened in the year of the 60th anniversary of the organisation. More than 73,400 children and young people have a stable home in SOS Children's Villages and youth facilities in 132 countries and territories. More than 1.2 million children and adults are benefiting from various social services (family strengthening programmes, schools, vocational training centres, medical centres, emergency relief etc.). The Guidelines for the Alternative Care of Children, to which SOS Children's Villages has significantly contributed to, are officially welcomed by the UN General Assembly.

2010: After the devastating earthquake in Haiti, over 500 unaccompanied children were given a temporary home in the SOS Children's Villages in Santo and Cap Haitien. Thousands of children participated in the emergency nutrition programme.

2012: In June, SOS Children's Villages International held its 19th General Assembly and elected Siddhartha Kaul as President, succeeding Helmut Kutin, who had held the position for 27 years.
